Fox School of Business Breakfast Series

The Fox Executive MBA Board is pleased to announce the first in an ongoing series of Breakfast Meetings that will deliver timely and compelling forums around which our community can meet, discuss topics important to the business community, network and strengthen our relationships with each other.

Please join us for our first program - “The Healthcare Revolution: Can Your Business Survive and Thrive?” - will be on Tuesday December 4th from 7:00AM to 10:00AM at the Union League in Philadelphia:

This compelling panel discussion – featuring experienced leaders representing Insurance Companies, Hospitals, Physicians, and Employers – will start by providing a primer describing the key changes in healthcare, then swiftly moving on to discuss and debate key questions:

- How did the recent national election change an already complex healthcare landscape?
- What are the national, regional and local business impacts of these changes?
- How can businesses deal with the uncertainty inherent in the massive scale of change we are going through?
- What can businesses do to recalibrate both their short term and long term plans to account for these changes?
- How will the US healthcare system meet the “Triple Aim” of Better Quality, Improved Patient Experience, and Reduced Cost?

Who should attend:
- Leaders in these industries affected by the impact of changes to healthcare law:
  - Employers / Business Leaders across all sectors
  - Healthcare Organization Administrative and Clinical Leaders
  - Insurance / Payer Organization Leaders

Moderator:
- Dr. Larry Kaiser, Executive Vice President for Health Sciences, Dean of the Temple University School of Medicine and Chief Executive Officer of the Temple University Health System
